

Note: This activity will not function on touch screen devices or screen readers. Please access this activity on a computer or access the alternative learning activity.

Reflection Game

Reflecting on your learning - Past Module

Reflecting on the PAST module and your 1st career tool, your Resume, please critique:

- 1. What you did (by dragging from the Options section below 2 correct responses into the WHAT section of the first building below);
- 2. So What it means (by writing a minimum of 50 words in the text box in the So What section of the second building below); and
- 3. Now what you plan to do with your Resume (by dragging from the Options section below 2 correct responses into the NOW WHAT section of the far right building below).

Reset Finish Print

Options

What

So What

Now What

I included my full contact details, education information, skills and expereinces (employment, WIL placements, volunteering).

I produced a resume that was 2-3 pages, in reverse chronological order.

So what my resume says about me is that I have strengths in teamwork, responsibility and customer service and gaps in confidence and time-managment. I am passionate and up to the challenge of applying for a great graduate position in the field of cybersecurity including being an analyst or consulatant or any other role before the end of my degree.

I will consider and look for more opportunities to study abroad, go on study tours, or do more local volunteering work to help enhance my employability.

I intend to use my resume over the next couple of months to approach organisations for a placement as part of my course.

I produced a one page resume with my contact details and education information only.

I produced an error free resume, but I will wait to add referees.

I produced a resume with lots of paragraphs around all of my skills and experiences.

I am now going to wait for a job opportunity to come to me.

I am now going to quit my job and just focus on trying to find a better one.

you

self

ive

Once you have received your feedback, select "Print this Page" to save a copy for your future reference.

Reset

Finish

Print